13. Please indicate any ways you would use your role as Lieutenant Governor to promote civil rights and civil liberties.

I have spent my entire career fighting for the rights of those who have not historically had representation or an equal voice in the decisions that impact their lives. I came to this country as a young woman without knowing English. I put myself through school while also working full time. I spent years navigating the systems where most people do not look like me or know the challenges faced in my community. I know that it's those whose circumstances do not fit the mold, whose challenges are not well understood, whose needs are not always part of the discussion, who are the most vulnerable and in need of the protection that organizations like the ACLU work to protect.

As Lieutenant Governor, I have brought a fresh perspective to the office and given a voice to those who have not previously had a seat at the table. As LG, I lead the state's Equity Council, where we work to address racism and injustice throughout the state.

ADDITIONAL COMMENTS

Since I was sworn in as Lt. Governor a year and a half ago, I have revitalized the office of the Lt. Governor. I played a key role to secure $250 million in housing and worked closely with the Governor to eliminate the car tax and strengthen Rhode Island's gun law. And while my opponents have mixed records on reproductive rights, I used the full force of my office and my decades of work fighting for women's healthcare to get Governor McKee to support an expansion of abortion rights after the disastrous Supreme Court ruling. Serving as your Lt. Governor is a true honor and a huge responsibility.
